THE POLLARDS AS DIMINUTIVE ARTISTS

There is a refreshing novelty about the performances of the Pollard's Liliupituan Opera Company which makes every old piece seem new. It can most truthfully be said that the public do not tire of these charming little Australian children. Their former success as decidedly being repeated this season and one hears nothing but the warmest commendations from those who have witnessed their productions. In their comedy work the little people do not imitate, they create. They are giving us entirely new ideas of the characters impersonated.
